Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 30 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Remaining changeable but very mild over the coming days.

This Evening and Tonight:
Staying rather cloudy with some drizzle in places this evening, before a new band of rain and stronger winds arrives from the west during the second half of the night. Mild overnight with temperatures staying in double figures. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Friday:
New Year's Eve will start rather grey and damp, but it should turn drier and brighter, especially in the east, throughout the afternoon. Remaining very mild with winds easing. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A bright but blustery day on New Year's Day with some showers around. Remaining similar on Sunday, before it turns colder with some showery rain on Bank Holiday Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.